

The New York Newspapers.

My readers have before now discovered that I am a journalist and no apology is needed for that statement that my thoughts run very much to journalistic subjects, while my stock of information is more liberally supplied from that source than from any other.

ther. Perhaps I can interest them with a paragraph about leading newspapers and the men who make them. The past year has been one of remarkable prosperity for the member of the fourth estate. It is supposed that to his owner a sum in excess of $200,000, while the Tribune credited with $165,000; profits of the Times with upwards of $100,000, the World with nearly the same sum, and the Express with about $80,000. The Evening Post has been, also, a very profitable concern; but the reports as to its success are so diverse, that it is perhaps not worth while to speculate on the subject, because the publishing can be as accurately done in Springfield, as here. Of course stock in any of these papers is very valuable, and very rarely to be bought at any price. The heaviest owner in the Tribune is a Massachusetts man, Dr. James C. Ayer of Lowell. Samuel Sinclair, the publisher, is also one of its largest owners; while Stephen T. Clarko, the writer of the money article, and Horace Greeley (who perhaps needs no particular description,) are likewise peculiarly interested to the large amount. The principal owners of the Times are reported to be Leonard M. Ludlow, and lock maker and stock operator, James B. Taylor, broker; Henry Raymond, editor and M. C.

George Jones, publisher of the Times, and Christopher Morgan, Methodist fame. The World is now owned, managed and edited by, soul, body, soul and breeches, by Jonathan Marble; with, to be sure, corps of assistance in each department, although his supervision attends all the transactions of every one. It is ably conducted, and is getting to be a power, although we of Massachusetts would probably agree that it is not the Satanic stripe in politics. But so long as diabolism is profough people to promulgate the news of his infernal majesty on tribune,) are the proprietors of the express; the person last named bore the third person in the word the third person in the very comfortable trinity of the Express concern, whom the other two persons therein unsuccessfully endeavored some time since to squelch.

the dry land of the supreme court, (Jonah aforesaid) has thereby the Express establishment to a tune of about $10,000; a consideration for which most of us
